1. Course Description

1.1 Context

Course overview:

Ethical issues in business represent one part of the moral territory we must navigate in all of our daily activities. The overarching goal of this course is to prepare future managers for confronting the truly difficult situations that arise when deploying economic resources, altering the physical environment, and making decisions that affect the life of investors, employees, community members, and other stakeholders. This course will focus not only on the particular demands of business but also analyse these in relation to how we weigh the competing interests and values confronting us in the larger world in which our work lives are embedded. From this course, students can learn about the potential consequences of business actions, and enhance their abilities in making ethical decisions.

2.3 Assessment/Grading Details

Assessment task	Weighting
Class Participation	20%
Midterm Exam	30%
Final Exam	50%

Explanation:

Class participation grades reflect the instructors' judgment of the students' contribution to the learning environment. The grades take into account (1) the frequency of the students' response in class, and (2) the quality of the response (e.g., relevance to course materials; insights that differ from others' point of view; elaboration or clarification of others' opinions) as well as (3) the professionalism of the students' conduct (e.g., attendance, punctuality, preparedness, and behaviour during the class). The class participation score will be differently graded as full score, half score, or zero score for each student.

Exams are closed-book. The format of exam questions will be multiple-choice. Exam content will be derived from in-class lectures, course readings and any other course-associated materials. The midterm and final exams will be held during a regularly schedule class meeting time. Midterm will be 50 questions, while the final exam will be 100 questions.

Reschedule exam will be provided for students who is unable to participate in the scheduled exam. A penalty of 10-percentage points will be assessed against the rescheduled exam score. There is only one reschedule exam and no other exam make-up options will be available. The date will be scheduled and announced by the instructor.

2.4 Academic Honesty and Plagiarism

It is important for a student's effort and credit to be recognized through class assessment. Credits earned for a student work due to efforts done by others are clearly unfair. Deliberate dishonesty is considered academic misconducts, which include plagiarism; cheating on assignments or examinations; engaging in unauthorized collaboration on academic work; taking, acquiring, or using test materials without faculty permission; submitting false or incomplete records of academic achievement; acting alone or in cooperation with another to falsify records or to obtain dishonestly grades, honours, awards, or professional endorsement; or altering, forging, or misusing a University academic record; or fabricating or falsifying of data, research procedures, or data analysis.

All assessments are subject to academic misconduct check. Misconduct check may include reproducing the assessment, providing a copy to another member of faculty, and/or communicate a copy of this assignment to the PHBS Discipline Committee. A suspected plagiarized document/assignment submitted to a plagiarism checking service may be kept in its database for future reference purpose.

Where violation is suspected, penalties will be implemented. The penalties for academic misconduct may include: deduction of honour points, a mark of zero on the assessment, a fail grade for the whole course, and reference of the matter to the Peking University Registrar.

For more information of plagiarism, please refer to PHBS Student Handbook.
