1. Course Description

1.1 Context

Course overview:

This is a required course designed for graduate students in Economics and Business. This course examines the causes and consequences of economic growth and development in the developing world. In this course, we will explore theory, empirical practices, and public policy in development economics. This course also introduces students to an overview of China's economy since 1978 and the development strategy.

Prerequisites:

There is no official prerequisite for this course.

1.2 Textbooks and Reading Materials

I will use the course website to distribute all announcements, handouts, readings and homework assignments. The following textbooks are a good source of references.

- [4] Final project (40%). There will be a final project related to the topics in the lectures.

2.4 Academic Honesty and Plagiarism

It is important for a student's effort and credit to be recognized through class assessment. Credits earned for a student work due to efforts done by others are clearly unfair. Deliberate dishonesty is considered academic misconducts, which include plagiarism; cheating on assignments or examinations; engaging in unauthorized collaboration on academic work; taking, acquiring, or using test materials without faculty permission; submitting false or incomplete records of academic achievement; acting alone or in cooperation with another to falsify records or to obtain dishonestly grades, honors, awards, or professional endorsement; or altering, forging, or misusing a University academic record; or fabricating or falsifying of data, research procedures, or data analysis.

All assessments are subject to academic misconduct check. Misconduct check may include reproducing the assessment, providing a copy to another member of faculty, and/or communicate a copy of this assignment to the PHBS Discipline Committee. A suspected plagiarized document/assignment submitted to a plagiarism checking service may be kept in its database for future reference purpose.

Where violation is suspected, penalties will be implemented. The penalties for academic misconduct may include: deduction of honour points, a mark of zero on the assessment, a fail grade for the whole course, and reference of the matter to the Peking University Registrar.

For more information of plagiarism, please refer to PHBS Student Handbook.
